Question 1

- ❖ Key words to highlight when reading the question are outline; in your own words and either.
- ❖ As this is a 15 mark question, you should aim to make three well developed points.
- ❖ I based my sample answer (available on educate plus.ie) on John Lanchester's comments as they are neatly divided into three paragraphs and a conclusion.

- ❖ The question requires you to summarise and rephrase your chosen writer's points, so keep quotation to a minimum in this answer.
- ❖ If you have time, a brief introduction outlining the points which will be developed in the rest of your answer is a good way to begin. Remember, though, that you MUST develop each of these points!

Points / Plan - Always write a brief, (scribbled) plan for your own reference.

- ❖ Newness of video games is exciting and appealing
- ❖ Allow player to take control - engages player with story
- ❖ Novels and video games take you into a world created by others

Question 2

- ❖ Key words to highlight are two observations (one from each writer); thought-provoking and personal response. In this question you are asked to identify two observations from the text, you can limit your answer to two paragraphs.

Points / Plan

- ❖ Warner: importance of being true to your own culture rather than trying to impress
- ❖ Lanchester: link between novels and video games

Question 3

- ❖ Key words to highlight here are style and in both of their contributions.
- ❖ You are free to say you found both writers equally effective or you may prefer one over the other.
- ❖ The important thing is to compare both of them in your answer.
- ❖ Think of the way you compare texts in your comparative study. Use the same techniques in this answer: dig out the link words and phrases!

Points / Plan

- ❖ Prefer Lanchester's style
- ❖ Warner lacks structure
- ❖ Chatty tone can ramble at times
- ❖ Lanchester refers to common frame of reference while Warner focuses on his own life
- ❖ Lanchester's writing is more memorable because it is more dramatic than Warner's conversational and personal approach
